HEALTH NUISANCES, PUBLIC NUISANCES, AND PROPERTY NUISANCES

Complaints are frequently made to the State Board of Health about nuisances of various kinds by citizens who seem to feel that health authorities have the power to act officially on any condition that may be offensive to citizens and property owners. Such is not the case. The State Board of Health was established by law to carry out certain duties and to enforce certain laws specifically assigned to it by the State legislature. There are many cases in which the Board or its representatives have no authority to act. Typical of the complaints which are borderline cases or which are definitely out of the province of the State Board of Health are those pertaining to weed patches, poison ivy, mud holes, drainage, line fences, keeping livestock or poultry in a community, payment of rent, water service, and barking dogs.

The laws of the State recognize three types of nuisances: public health nuisances, public nuisances, and property nuisances. The steps necessary to seek abatement by law are different in each classification.

HEALTH NUISANCES

IC 1971, 16-1-3, section 11, provides:

"No person shall institute, permit or maintain any conditions whatever which may transmit, generate or promote disease; and any health officers, upon hearing in any way of the existence of such unlawful conditions within their respective jurisdictions, shall order abatement, in writing, if demanded, and specifying particularly wherein the conditions may transmit disease, and naming the shortest reasonable time for abatement. Upon refusal or neglect of any person to obey the order, the prosecuting attorney of the judicial circuit wherein the offense occurs, upon receiving the information from the health officer, shall institute proceedings in the courts for enforcement."

Thus, upon receiving a complaint regarding a possible health hazard, it is the duty of the local health officer to investigate and order its abatement if such is warranted. If such condition is thereafter permitted to exist, the local health officer shall refer enforcement to the county prosecutor.

PUBLIC NUISANCES

IC 1971, 35-1-102, section 2, provides:

"Whoever erects, continues, uses or maintains any building, structure, or place for the exercise of any trade, employment or business, or for the keeping or feeding of any animal, animals, or fowls, which, by occasioning noxious exhalations or noisome or offensive smells, becomes injurious to the health, comfort or property of individuals or the public; or whoever causes or suffers any offal, filth or noisome substance to be collected or to remain in any place to the damage, prejudice, or discomfort of others or the public; whoever obstructs or impedes, without legal authority, the passage of any navigable river, harbor or collection of waters, or unlawfully diverts any stream of water from its natural course or state, to the injury of others; or whoever obstructs or encumbers by fences, buildings, structures or otherwise, any public grounds, or erects, continues or maintains any obstruction to the full use of property, so as to injure the property of another or essentially to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life, shall on conviction, be fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars: Provided, that nothing in this section shall prevent the board of trustees of towns and the common councils of cities from enacting and enforcing such ordinances within their respective corporate limits as they may deem necessary to protect the public health and comfort." (Emphasis supplied)

Thus, should a complaint address itself to a nuisance, other than a health hazard, the complainant should be directed to the local prosecuting attorney for action.

PROPERTY NUISANCES

By far the most frequent nuisance action is that of a property nuisance in which the aggrieved party directly seeks enjoinder of the offensive conduct.

IC 1971, 34-1-52, section 1, defines a nuisance as "whatever is injurious to health, or indecent, or offensive to the senses, or an obstruction to the free use of property, so as essentially to interfere with the comfortable enjoyment of life or property, is a nuisance, and the subject of an action."

IC 1971, 34-1-52, section 2: "Nuisance - who may sue - Such action may be brought by any person whose property is injuriously affected, or whose personal enjoyment is lessened by the nuisance."

IC 1971, 34-1-52, section 3: "Nuisance - Remedy - Where a proper case is made, the nuisance may be enjoined or abated, and damages recovered therefor."

From the above, it can be seen that the remedy to be sought in a particular situation depends upon the class of nuisance in which the objectionable conduct falls.

From this discussion it can be seen that health authorities have no authority to abate public or property nuisances, but that the person or persons affected by the nuisance must file an affidavit or bring action in the courts for relief.

WE REFER YOU TO YOUR LOCAL PROSECUTING ATTORNEY OR YOUR PERSONAL LEGAL ADVISER FOR INFORMATION ON THE ABATEMENT OF PUBLIC OR PROPERTY NUISANCES.
